Forecast For East of England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Sunday 27 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Cloud and showery, heavy rain spreading north this evening.

This Evening and Tonight:
Initially dry with sunny spells. However, a band of cloud and heavy showers will spread northwards through the evening, with a risk of heavy downpours and thunderstorms. Later in the night the rain should ease and clear to the northwest. Minimum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Monday:
After a cloudy and murky start, sunny spells should gradually develop by the afternoon. A few heavy showers are also possible in the afternoon, most likely in the south. Maximum temperature 21 deg C (70 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Cloudy and muggy Tuesday with scattered showers, heavy and possibly thundery. Some brighter spells Wednesday and Thursday as showers become increasingly isolated.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.